Symphony of Rats, Beyond the Proscenium Productions

Review: Wow what a show. I've never really liked abstract theatre but I found myself really enjoying this show. It was funny and I was never bored. One of a kind show!

Review: This show is crazy!!! Did it make sense? You know what, I don't think that that matters at all. Right from the beginning when an actress bounces out on a pogo stick, this show delivers. It is high energy, and very enthusiastic. I found myself trying to figure stuff out but something else would start and I wouldn't have time to think about what just happened. Visually delicious and astounding performances by the entire cast. If you want to see something that is not done over and over again and want something fresh, check out Symphony of Rats. I liked it very much.

Review: This was the most energetic (and psychedelic) production I've seen this year. If you like abstract theater or if you just want to see something "completely different" with committed actors and explosive movement then you will love this show. Very weird and very fun.

- Adam Bearson

Review: This production by the Sacramento Theatre Experiment is truly hilarious and wonderful. I was surprised at my reaction (and I had to see this because of a class). The Best in Sacramento!
