audience reviews

Fiddler on the Roof, Magic Circle Theatre

Review: Vocally, this show is incredible. The director did a fine job putting together this cast to portray a sad story. It's all told very well. Jeffrey Heatherly is incredible as Tevya. I recommend seeing this show!

Review: My wife and I attended Fiddler Sunday afternoon, January 21 and really loved it! What a wonderful experience! Touching... funny... moving... thought provoking... and memorable: The songs and images are rolling through my mind even now. I caught Sue humming "Sabbath Prayer" before dinner yesterday! I've seen the show before but it never hit me like this performance. The cast and the production were truly wonderful. Sue said other performances we've seen were just that: performances or acting jobs that were very good... but your production truly struck us as more moving and real: "human beings living through the experiences." (a quote from Sue) I'm so happy and impressed, it's hard to put into words.

Review: I attended the 2 p.m. matinee performance on Superbowl Sunday and was surprised to see a fairly large crowd considering I had purchased an excellent seat in the fourth row only days before. This was the first time I had been to this theater and watched this local community group perform. Being a big fan of the movie, I really didn't expect a lot from a small local group. Boy, was I wrong! I was pleasantly surprised and impressed with the caliber of acting and singing. I felt like I was watching the movie all over again, complete with all highlights that made the movie so special including the very entertaining and crowd-pleasing bottle dance. I was very moved by this production, and will return to see another play!

Review: My husband and I saw this play on Feb 10 and were thoroughly entertained. We were in awe of the caliber of talent. I've seen the movie many times but had never seen a stage production of this story. The actor who played Tevye was amazing - he sounded very much like Topol, it was hard to distinguish the two. The music was exceptional. Our congratulations to the entire cast and crew for a truly memorable evening.

Review: I really enjoyed the show. I encourage people to go see it before it's done. Two comments though, does this group ever put any money into sets? And when will they do a show where the costumes are consistent and period?

- Royce Ralske

Review: It was a good production. The main weakness of the show was the orchestra. The accordion and drums were synthesized and it was very inappropriate for a show like Fiddler. The set was a bit cheap looking but the cast did a fine job.
