Man of La Mancha, Davis Musical Theatre Company

Review: This show was a let down and a huge dissapointment.
- HH

Review: I went in really wanting to enjoy the production. Man of La Mancha is a beautifully written show. But came away with the feeling that Tae, Lauren, Jason, and Mark and the ensemble deserved better (you were very solid). No problem with the sets or lights. Costumes could have been a whole lot more shabby, hair could have reflected their situation (too many very straight hair parts). And no problem with the talent on stage. Everyone had a chance and showed they could make it happen if given the chance. The problem was the direction/choreography. It was like high school. People standing in one place and delivering lines or whole songs. I understand that the director/choreographer is one of the founding members but DMTC needs bring in anyone of the number of phenominal director/choreographers in the area when they do a show like La Mancha. I'm not usually so critical but this is a lovely show and they had the people to make it special but they weren't given the chance. Sorry.
