Pajama Game, Davis Musical Theatre Company

Review: Some of the 'girls' are not as focused as the others. Some girls are really cute and have a lot of energy on stage, like Poopsie. Gladys is hilarious. Babe is a babe (the sight of her cookin' in her slip - worth the ticket price) with a great voice! Who is this Bob Fosse guy and how can I learn how to excite my girlfriend like he does? All she could talk about on the way home was ssssSteam Heat. It was really a cool number, but the rest of them were just ok; not many people in this show can dance, but its better than what you usually see out there. The dancing had more patterns and formations and didnt go on forever. That Sid kid could sing really well. Overall, I had a good time.

Review: Intresting! A usual Davis show where the cast is miss cast with their own people. Dancing in most of the numbers was very poor. There is no energy to the numbers and not very thought out. Steam Heat was pretty good. Babe is always fun to watch on stage and has an amazing voice. I just think the wrong people were involved with this production. Yeah for their effort though.

Review: Going to this show you have to keep in mind that Davis is a small town. In that town you will get sometimes not so good talent and sometimes, like in this show, you will get stand out talent. Though the ensemble is weak (even for Davis) the leads make up for it. Josh Smith plays Sid. He has a clear beautiful voice. Though at times it is hard to hear him (I was in the second to last row). Lauren Miller who plays Gladys is funny as usual. It was good to see her playing the kind of role she does best. She suprised me in 'Steam Heat' though the standout in that number is clearly the young woman with dark hair. I am sorry to say I dont know her name. Miller did good with her comedic timing. I must admitt her yelling started to wear by the second act. Herb Schultz plays Hines. He has watched the movie one to many times in my oppinion. He was fun to watch but could not hold his own next to Miller who was WAY bigger and over the top than him (as it should have been). I felt this couple was not cast properly. But they still were very entertaining. Last there was a young woman i had not seen in Davis before. Amber Jean Moore. She is playing Babe. It is rare to find such a talent. She lit up the stage everytime she made an entrance. What a voice! Her singing 'There Once Was A Man' was so impressive. What a range! But she was able to slow things down when she sang 'hey there'. It gave me chills. The icing on the cake is, She is beautiful. All i can say is 4 stars to her. I usually dont talk to the cast after the show. But i had to make an exception this one time just to shake her hand. Kudos to Davis for finding her! Overall, a nice production.

Review: Overall a fun time, although some of the singing was pretty weak. The guy who played Sid was surprisingly good, but not perfect (but then, who is, especially in community theatre?). The girl playing Babe was just "OK"... she hit the right notes MOST of the time, but there were moments in "There Once Was a Man" that made me cringe, and just "hitting the notes" isn't enough to bring life to a song. Also, the love scenes between Babe and Sid seemed a bit awkward, but that isn't necessarily the actors' fault. The actress playing Gladys was great, although the character itself got tiresome after a while, as did many of the others in this old-fashioned show. Anyway, it really is a good time if you like this type of show, and most of the cast will keep you entertained!

Review: I saw Pajama Game on Saturday of the second weekend. I have never laughed that much in a long time. Lauren Miller is more than funny. She is perfect in this role. She yells, Screams and just makes you think of a person you wish you could be. And as far as Amber Jean Moore, I have never seen a talent like that in the greater Sacramento area in all my days. I believe everything when she is on stage. Brilliant! Thats what she is. I got chills and was suprised that a talent that big was still in this area. She can Dance, Sing and Act. A true tripple threat. A wonderful show. I would recomend it for anyone.

Review: I thought the woman playing Gladys was wonderful. she made the whole audience smile everytime she made an entrance. Her timing was perfect. As far as Babe, She was WAY more than OK. She was Amazing. Such a voice for being in the Sacramento/Davis area. That girl is going places. When she sang "Hey There" I remember having to rub my arms from the chills I got. Poopsie was great! Where did she come from? such a fresh talent! The only negative thing i would say about the show is, The ensemble seemed to not care about the show. They were just there!

Review: It was a Great Show! I think the best things in the show were not the two female leads but rather Sid! He was a knock out! Davis should hold onto him with both hands. The other stand out performance of the night was Mable. she was very funny. 3.5 stars To DMTC!!

Review: The show is very energyless (is that a word?) davis is a small town company but they have been doing it for years now. need to get some new people involved and time to step out the old ones. Good attempt but the choreography did nothing for the show and that is what usually has to carry a show. always one great person in the show, Amber Moore is just awesome as always.
