No Parole, Sacramento Theatre Company (Pollock Stage)

Review: I was completely entertained and VERY moved. It made me call my mother and tell her how much I love her. The actor moves with the grace of a dancer.
- Emily

Review: I thought I had a crazy Mom. I thought I had dealt with all my Mom-issues growing up. Then I saw No Parole. Wow! I walked out feeling like I should call my Mom and just talk to her about life and our relationship. That is what I did. Possibly the best conversation we ever had. That is what good theater should do - inspire you to move forward in your life. Thanks STC!
- robert

Review: I laughed, I cried, I pondered the absurdity, pain, and beauty of families. It's true we cannot pick them. This show is unbelievable. I can't imagine what it must be like for Carlos D'Amore to put himself through so much emotion nearly every night. I have been telling everyone I know to go and see this show. It was sad that it was not a packed house, blame the economy I guess.
- Ruby

Review: Really a marginal performance, and the actor seemed frustrated by the small crowd.
- Gil O.
