Review: I used to say that I didn't like musicals. Well this certainly was a musical. The difference was amazing and the two actors were well suited and did an excellent job. The play held my interest as the three parts intersperced through the two acts. If I had one negative comment it would be that we have again been connected to Iraq. But then it is 2008 and the soldiers currently dying are likely from that part of the world. It might have worked better for me if set in another time and space, but then I recommend the play without reservation as it worked on a variety of levels.

Review: I doubt that you will find anywhere two actors/singers who give as flawless and mesmerizing performance as Melissa Dye and Edward Watts do in this show. BRAVO!

Review: I saw this play last night and was throughly entertained. From the set to the music and the acting. It was a delightful evening. I would recommend it to anyone who would like a wonderful theatre experience.

Review: A terrific musical production, from start to finish. Although the play was long (one hour 40 minutes) it moved swiftly and was entertaining. The performers were superb; great chemistry and wonderful voices. Have the tissues handy and wear waterproof mascara - this emotional production will make you laugh -- AND cry.
