audience reviews

Women of Lockerbie, California Stage (formerly The Space)

Review: I saw this play on opening night, and thought that it was fantastic. It was a little emotionally draining, but only because of the seriousness of the topic. The acting was superb and I loved the set. I sat in the front row and got a little misty eyed. I think that this play is important for everyone to see given the times we are in. It showed me that compassion and understanding go a long way in healing the world tragedies. Through the serious production peeked a couple of moments of comedy that were well done by "Hati," the cleaning lady for the american agent stationed in Scotland, and these comedic interruptions were well placed. Loved the script. I reccomend that everyone go and see this one.
